What is computer and technical skill?

Computer skills are abilities and knowledge which allow you to use computers and related technology. They let you use word processing software, access the Internet, manage files, or create presentations. Advanced computer skills would let you access databases, use spreadsheets, and even code.

Computers and computerized devices have become an integral part of society. In fact, many people use them in schools, homes, and the workplace. It has become imperative to know basic computer skills to survive in the world. In college, many students acquire basic computer skills that equip them with the knowledge to operate a computer, such as sending emails, conducting Internet research, creating word processing documents and creating presentations. The days of textbook only research and handwritten submissions are over. With the advent of web-enhanced courses, students must possess basic computer skills in order to execute commands in basic computer applications. These basic computer skills help students excel in college and eventually carry over with them into the workforce. Exercising and advancing computer literacy skills can also lead to greater opportunities.

One of the most important skills to learn on a computer is how to type. Typing is very important because it's how you enter things into the computer. If you are searching online for information, you will need to be able to type in what you are looking for, and as you get older, you'll need to type up essays for school. Being able to type well will help you get things done on a computer more quickly.

Basic technology skills that help students:

- Word Processing Skills
